SECTION-A

Read the following passage carefully.

One evening, when Anil's father was out of town, and Kamal and I had been invited to stay the night at Anil's upper-storey flat in the bazaar, his mother began to tell us about the various types of ghosts she had known. Mulia, the maid--servant, having just taken a bath, came out on the verandah, with her hair loose.

"My girl, you ought not to leave your hair loose like that," said Anil's mother. "It is better to tie a knot in it. There are spirits called Jinns who are attracted by long hair and pretty black eyes like yours. They may be tempted to carry you away!"

"How dreadful" exclaimed Mulia, hurriedly tying a knot in her hair, and going indoors to be on the safe side. "Can you see Jinns, aunty?" I asked.

"Sometimes," she said. "There was a Mathematics teacher in our locality, whose pupils were about the same age as you. One of the boys was very good at his lessons.

One day, while he sat at his desk in a corner of the classroom, the teacher asked him to fetch a book from the cupboard which stood at the far end of the room. The boy, who felt lazy that morning, didn't move from his seat. He merely stretched out his hand, took the book from the cupboard, and handed it to the teacher. Everyone was astonished, because the boy's arm had stretched about four yards before touching the book! They realised that he was a Jinn; that was the reason for his being so good at games and exercises which required great agility."

"Well, I wish I was a Jinn," said Anil. "Especially for volleyball matches."
